

INCOME TAX ON PROPERTY DEVELOPMENT ACTIVITIES

MIRI 5 JULY 2019

INTRODUCTION

Property development is a specialised industry with many complex issues, arrangements and transactions. Specific taxation rules are prescribed in the Income Tax (property development) Regulations 2007 and more guidance is provided in Public Ruling 1/2009 issued by the Inland Revenue Board (IRB). Despite the specific rules and guidelines, property developers need to deal with and manage many grey areas and issues so as to minimise potential tax exposure when audited by the IRB. Due to the significant value of property projects, the tax impact or exposure can be high. Recently, a few prominent listed property developers were hit with multi million ringgit tax bills due to conflicting position and interpretation adopted by the IRB on certain issues.

This workshop will enable you gain clarity on specific issues based on tax audit experiences related to the property development that comes with many complex issues, arrangements and transactions.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

Property developers, staff from finance and tax departments, accountants, tax agents, auditors, small and medium practitioners
